A FEW OF THEM THERE.

A Good Place to Find Some Crowther Democrats.

CHAS. MO., Oct. 3.—To the St. Joseph Daily news: The following clipping was handed me to-day by a life-long Democrat:

"One hears talk, every now and then, of 'Warner Democrats.' Some cheerful liars in this district at times have the nerve to allude to something they call 'Crowther Democrats.'"

Cattle with these brands are never rounded up. Always they are in the next township; never where you can put your hands on them. When the next township is reached, they have moved on, or back. They are where you are going, or where you came from, but not by any chance where you are.

The Gazette has been chasing these wild-o'-the-wisp with some patience and pertinacity. It had heard of them, and wanted to find one. It wanted to see what it looked like, and hear how it talked, and observe its cut as it wobbled along the political high road. But up to date the chase has been fruitless. Lately it has begun to look hopeless.

There are no Warner Democrats. There are no Crowther Democrats. There are plenty of them there, unless you go there. There will be plenty of them there until after the election. The Republican press has created them and it will keep them alive in the next township. —[St. Joseph Gazette.]

After I had read it my friend remarked that if D. D. Barnes or the Gazette would look in any township in Holt county they would not need to go into the next township to find Crowther Democrats, and they could find a few samples here in Union township that would very soon show them what kind of men they are trading. There was a protest circulated here against Barnes as a Congressional candidate, and the Gazette will find out on election day that the parties who signed that paper do not particularly admire being called "cattle" for the reason that Barnes can not buy them and sell them as he would so many mules. And referring to this Gazette article again in regard to "cheerful liars," the man who wrote that was either a liar or a fool, and if he will visit Craig we can convince him of that fact, provided always that he has manhood enough to admit or assume enough to know a "Crowther Democrat" when he meets him and talks with him face to face. A Democrat.

—There was quite a scrap in Bigelow, Sunday evening. A young man from Mount City, came over to Bigelow badly bucked. After driving around the streets several times at a fast gait he finally got out of his buggy and began to abuse L. F. You, the hotel man, finally striking Mr. You. After Mr. You got through with him the young man asked if lightning had struck any one else. Now one word to smart folks: When you get badly bucked and are looking for a scrap, don't fail to come to Bigelow for we are all built that way. Two boys.

—Politics still rage. It isn't all Democratic either, notwithstanding both our papers are Democratic on national issues. Of course one of our editors who has lived and voted as a Democrat, for several years, is somewhat excusable. At least he hasn't been bought out any way the evidence isn't against him. But, O, my; that other man. He says he is a Republican, but with a good straight forward honest Republican in the field he persists in supporting a Democrat who is trying to buy his way into congress. It begins to look as though there was an overgrown African concealed in the supply of fuel. If he (the editor) wants to say anything please let him deny or affirm something and not dodge the question. PAST A LOSS.

Marshal of the Day.

President of the Day.

A Scarecrow.

Democrats are great fellows for run-down and scarecrows. In the present campaign they have exhibited an especial weakness for the latter. Unable or unwilling—or both—to meet the issues of the day squarely or attempt a solution of questions that confront the people, they can always be depended upon to raise some kind of a scarecrow when these questions are taken up by a party that means a test of their merits or demerits. An instance of this is shown in the Times' attack last week on the position taken by Hon. John Kennish, Republican candidate for state senator, on the convict labor question. One would think by the space devoted by our contemporary to Mr. Kennish's canvass in this county that that gentleman had given the editor of the Times a regular "duck fit" and that is about the fact in the premises. Although our brother on the other side of the partition closes one of his articles on our candidate for senator with the somewhat "chip on the shoulder" declaration: "Let those who will defend him," yet we know enough about the "spots," although not a professional gambler, to not get very badly frightened at the bluff of a man with a "bob-tailed flush."

Mr. Kennish made a dignified gentlemanly canvass of this county. We attended three of his meetings and we heard many expressions of approval of his argument. From the different audiences that listened to him. The leaders of the Democracy became aware of the favorable impression made by Mr. Kennish and of course something must be done to counteract it, so the little oblique flag-pole is raised by the Democratic organ and the scarecrow of "unprotected females" hung upon it.

The Times says it has no personal fight to make against Mr. Kennish and in next breath insults him with the statement that he is in favor of legislation that will endanger the safety of our wives and daughters. It also says the proposition to work the convicts on the public roads is impracticable. It may be, but we know that in Jackson county (and it is Democratic) work house criminals—tramp criminals—the worst terror to unprotected women of any class of toughs—are worked out on the public roads pounding rock for macadamizing purposes, etc., and during our stay of eight years in Kansas City we never heard a complaint about it. We believe the Democrats of Kansas City and Jackson county have as good and true wives and daughters as any in the land. Did they invite the ruin of those wives and daughters when they made it the law for work house convicts to work the roads? How about the convicts that the Democratic state government has placed in the names of Missouri to come into competition with honest labor?

The Times says Mr. Kennish proposes to bring hardened criminals amongst the quiet and peaceful country homes to become in a measure the companions of our boys and girls. More scarecrow. Mr. Kennish does not propose to do anything of the kind. The editor of the Times knows that the convict labor lease system is a great crime against the honest toiler; that it is the cause of terrible bloodshed in Tennessee only a short time ago; that legislation is badly needed on that question in this state as well as others; that the better sentiment of the people of the several states is in favor of some enactment that will remove convict labor from competition with the honest toilers outside the penitentiaries; and that is Mr. Kennish's only aim in favoring a law that would work convicts on the public roads. He also knows that the passage of such a law would mean a provision for their safe keeping wherever at work. It has been suggested that the best way to do this would be to have jails on wheels.

It might be that a gang of convicts working on the roads out in the country sometimes a mile or more from any house would be more of a menace to the safety of the people than they would in the densely populated cities, but we don't believe it. It might be that a schoolboy passing a chain gang on the public road would become fired with a passion to go and kill somebody and "join the gang," but we don't believe it. If the Times had stated that it opposed Mr. Kennish because he is not a Democrat, it would have given open expression to a fact which it vainly attempted to cover up with a lot of sentimental twaddle. No safer man than John Kennish could be sent to the state senate from North Missouri, and the fact that he impressed the people of Worth county with his good business sense and safety in the thorn in the side of our Democratic brother.—Grant City Star.

Fraud Charged by the People's

State Chairman Irwin, of the People's party of Georgia declares that there was fraud in the election of last week. He says:

"There was a great deal of ballot box stuffing. Down in Dougherty county it was shameful. Out in Rockdale county they offered $10 for negro votes; they were bought straight out. You see when Howell and Livingston voted, to New York they brought back a load of money and it was spent freely. Many of the laboring men were told that they would be discharged if they voted for the People's party, and the railroads gave the same notice to their employees. For that reason we did not get our full strength."

"How does the party feel over their defeat?"

"We are going right ahead. We shall fight right on through the presidential and congressional elections in November, and then we expect to make a far better showing. After that we will go ahead and carry on the fight for the next two years. No, sir, we shall not give it up by a long shot. We will have United States Marshals at the polls in November, who will protect the balloting. The people that have gone into this movement will never turn back. We are in for the war and expect to remain organized."

J. D. Tritt and wife, accompanied by Grandma Norville have returned from their visit with Kansas and Nebraska friends.

A Good Riddance.

The notorious Dalton gang of outlaws, were wiped off of the face of the earth at Coffeyville, Kansas, Wednesday, Oct. 5, 1892, and thus many citizens can breathe free in the localities they were wont to curse with their presence. Besides it will have a tendency to check the operations of other lawless gangs.

The six outlaws came into the town of Coffeyville together on horse back at 9:30, on the morning of Oct. 5, and leaving their horses in an alley, four of them entered Condon's bank and two the First National. The citizens of Coffeyville were determined to exterminate them, and were almost successful five of the gang being killed, only one escaping, but in the battle three good citizens were killed and two fatally wounded, one of the wounded men dying since.

The money the desperadoes secured, over $20,000, was all recovered, and about $800 in addition, proving the statement made by Emmet Dalton to be true, that they came into town with about $10,000.

It is to be sincerely regretted that four of the leading citizens of Coffeyville lost their lives; and the public in general, and especially the railroad companies should see that the families of these men received the reward offered for the capture of the infamous gang of desperadoes, and further that their wives be promptly supplied in the future money is a poor recompense for these lives, but it is a necessity, and should be cheerfully given.

Remember the big rally, in Oregon, Saturday, Oct. 15th. A $25 flag will be presented to the township sending the largest delegation, East Lewis not competing.
